Dulles Declares Russia Refuses Problems Talks

Dwelling Law Is Told to Firemen

Legislative Adviser Gives Requirements; Becomes Effective in July

Provisions of the state's multiple dwelling law, part of which is to become effective next July, were explained to members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at High Falls last night by Harry Prince, technical adviser to the joint legislative committee on the law.

The firemen were guests of the High Falls Fire Company and the meeting attracted 200 volunteers representing 45 of the association's 65 companies. Town and county officials and guests from Greene, Orange, Sullivan, Dutchess and Rockland counties attended.

Under provisions of the multiple dwelling law fire inspectors and enforcement agencies are to be established and all multiple dwellings must be registered before next July.

Combinations Possible

The inspectors and enforcement agents are to be formed by local government, possibly by town boards in the county. It was indicated that both jobs may be held by the one person and that two or three townships may combine in meeting provisions of the law.

The law generally provides for better fire escape, exit and protection facilities in multiple dwelling buildings. Part of its provisions will be effective next July 1 and the rest a year later.

Discussion on the law last night indicated that local action will be necessary as soon as possible to set up inspection and enforcement units, and open the way for complete registration.

Gets 50 Millionth Phone

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—President Eisenhower got a handsome new telephone today—the 50 millionth instrument produced by the U. S. telephone industry. Cleo F. Craig, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and Warren B. Clay, president of the U. S. Independent Telephone Association, installed the instrument by plugging it in by Eisenhower's White House desk. A moment later, the President picked up the telephone and told the White House switchboard operator: "I just wanted you to know I just had a new telephone put in."

Rulers Have Retreated Into Defensive, U. S. Secretary Believes

Cleveland, Nov. 18 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today Russian rulers have refused to talk with the West about European problems because of fear for their control over peoples behind the iron curtain.

"The Soviet rulers have retreated into a diplomatic defensive," the secretary declared. "The free world now has the diplomatic and moral initiative."

Dulles, in a speech prepared for the annual convention of the CIO, said he believes the examples of progress in the free world would ultimately cause the collapse of Soviet control over what he called "the captive world front." He said it is neither necessary nor desirable "that we should try to foment violent revolution."

Claims Clear Victory

It was in this connection, that Dulles claimed a clear victory for the United States, Britain and France in their diplomatic exchange with Russia, beginning last July, over their proposal for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting to discuss Germany and establish Austria's independence.

In a note Nov. 3 the Russians in effect rejected the specific proposal, insisting that first there must be agreement to meet with the Chinese Communists on world problems, and that the western

Three Escapees Given New Terms In County Court

Farnum, Stever, Snyder Were Away From Walkkill Only Few Hours

Three young men who escaped from Walkkill prison last September were sentenced to indeterminate terms of from one to two years at hard labor in county court today when they withdrew former pleas of innocent and entered guilty pleas to the escape charge.

Frederick Farnum, serving time for robbery from Rochester where he was given 7½ to 15 years, said he left prison at Walkkill in order to go to Rochester and consult an attorney because he had not been represented by counsel when he was picked up for parole violation and had been unable to secure legal assistance while in prison. He was out for two days and then allegedly gave himself up when he realized he had become involved seriously with the law.

Away Only Few Hours

Bernard H. Stever and Edward F. Snyder who were serving time for grand larceny were away from Walkkill only a few hours when they were picked up. Stever, 19, said he left the prison because he was "homesick." He alleged he was given a five-year term in prison while a companion was given only seven months. Snyder, serving 5 to 10 years told his counsel, Francis Martocci, who was assigned to the three defendants, that he had asked to be confined

15 Men Are Killed in Crash Of Plane in Paratroop Drop

Ft. Bragg, N. C., Nov. 18 (AP)—A C119 Flying Boxcar hurtled to earth during a mass paratrooper drop here yesterday killing 15 men—five aboard and 10 floating from parachutes in its path.

It probably never will be known which men were struck by the falling plane and which had their chutes collapse in its wake. A board of officers is investigating. The Boxcar apparently developed engine trouble during a drop of about 1,000 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division. The drop, a 32-transit training project, was part of a conference on joint airborne operations. The pilot, co-pilot, two air force crewmen and a paratrooper rode the falling plane to their deaths. The paratrooper was unable to jump because a shovel, part of his heavy equipment,

He Declares FBI Never Party to Promotion Pact

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's dramatic disclosure that he opposed—but bowed to—former President Truman's decision to keep Harry Dexter White in government fanned new political controversy in the spectacular case today.

Hoover told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee at a crowded, televised hearing yesterday that he advised against retaining White, who had been named in an FBI report as an espionage suspect.

The FBI director said grimly he had never committed his agency to any such arrangement, which he said would have been "inconceivable" for it and "not within my purview." He added that FBI efforts to keep an eye on White were hampered after Truman let White's appointment as U. S. director of the International Monetary Fund go through on Feb. 26, 1946.

"At no time was the FBI a party to an agreement to promote Harry Dexter White and at no time did the FBI give its approval to such an arrangement," Hoover declared.

But Hoover confirmed that Truman, as the former President had said, permitted White to transfer from the Treasury to the Monetary Fund post with the idea of continuing surveillance of him. Truman had not contended the FBI had approved this course.

Hoover also said two Truman cabinet members involved did not favor keeping White in government service.

Brownell Cites 'Conclusion'

Atty. Gen. Brownell, who preceded Hoover as a witness yesterday, said any "reasonable man" would have to conclude that Truman knew White was a spy when he appointed him.

But the attorney general conceded, under sharp questioning by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), that it was a matter of "judgment." He said he was not impugning Truman's loyalty as the former President had claimed in asserting that Brownell "lied to the American people."

Brownell said, rather, that Truman was guilty of "blindness" and "flexity" toward Communists in government. It was Brownell who first made the accusations against Truman in a speech Nov. 6.

In Kansas City, Mo., Truman shrugged this off with the comment, "why waste words?"

Sure He Told Truth

Truman said he had watched Brownell's testimony on TV but not Hoover. He added of the FBI director: "I'm sure he told the truth."

Miss Fanny White, 70, a sister of Harry Dexter White, said in Boston Brownell's charges are "false, all false." She said her brother, who died in 1948 after swearing he was not a spy, "loved this country" and "had no respect for Russia."

Although Truman seemed disposed to stand on his radio-televised statements of Monday night, there was discussion among Democratic members of the Senate committee about asking him to volunteer a reply to the statements of Brownell and Hoover.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind.), noting these suggestions, had the blunt comment: "I'm not interested."

Jenner planned to call John W. Snyder, once Truman's secretary of the treasury, later for testimony on his attitude toward Harold Glasser. Brownell said Glasser was named, along with White, "as a member of the espionage ring" and had served as White's adviser on the monetary fund job.

Hopes Red Cleanup Will Remove Issue

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he hopes his administration's cleanup in Washington will eliminate the Communist-in-government issue from next year's political campaign.

The President told a news conference he has said his last word, at least for the time being, on the Harry Dexter White case.

Then, in a generalization in response to questions, he said he does not believe Americans can afford to live in fear of each other forever.

He said he cheerfully acknowledges the responsibility of the executive departments to clean out Communists from the government.

Route 28, Thruway Are Expected to Be Joined in Month

Work Still Is in Progress on Spur; Talks Held on Local Problems

Route 28 and the New York State Thruway are expected to be connected for the opening of the express highway between here and Catskill early next month, available information indicated today.

Work is still in progress on the spur which will connect the mountain route and the express highway, but the connecting strip is expected to be finished and ready for traffic by the first part of next month unless special problems arise between now and then.

One source today indicated the possibility of opening the spur by Dec. 1, but Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said that he had been told recently by a state official that he would be given at least two weeks notice and possibly more, before the state thruway authority opens the route, and he has not been notified.

Holding Conferences

State officials have been holding conferences to iron out as many traffic problems in the city as possible before opening the thruway and a traffic engineer conferred with Mayor Newkirk to determine his plan for routing thruway traffic through the city.

The mayor's plan, briefly, calls for routing much of the thruway traffic over Washington avenue to Route 32, Route 9W traffic, under this plan would change to and from 32 in the New Paltz

None Is Injured In 3-Way Crash

School Bus, Truck, Car Collide; Trucker Is Fined

A three-car accident at 7:30 a. m. today at the intersection of Routes 9W and 209 involved a stopped school bus, a dump truck and a 1948 sedan, state police of the Kingston Station reported.

No injuries were reported, according to Troopers H. S. Rhodes and W. L. Shurter, who investigated.

They said the school bus, owned by Acker Bus Lines, Inc., of East Kingston, traveling north on 9W, stopped to take on children. It was operated by John Joseph McCurtain, 36, of East Kingston.

The sedan, operated by Dominick Angelo DeGregoria, 25, of Bronxville, traveling south on 9W stopped for the school bus, troopers reported, and the dump truck attempted to stop but its brakes failed.

The truck, carrying a load of lumber, struck the left rear fender of the car and overturned, the lumber plunging off and hitting the bus, troopers said. The truck, owned and operated by Stanley Ingalls, 60, of Norton Hill, continued off the right side of the road after overturning, it was reported.

The sedan was damaged in the rear, the truck in the front and side and the bus "slightly" on the side.

Ingalls was arrested on a charge of "dangerous speed," pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea and was fined $15.

Eisenhower Waits Month On Budget

President Says Balance Next Fiscal Year Doubtful From His Viewpoint

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—President Eisenhower, shunting aside the Harry Dexter White case at his news conference, said today he does not believe the federal budget can be balanced in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

He also said the administration probably won't know until next month whether it will have to ask Congress to increase the national debt ceiling of 275 billion dollars.

Eisenhower told the conference he had said his last word, for the present at least, on the biggest issue in Washington, the controversy over former President Truman's letting the appointment of White to a high monetary post go through in 1946 in the face of an FBI report that White was suspected of being a Communist spy.

Matter of History

He voiced the hope that the Communist-in-government issue will be a matter of history by the time the 1954 congressional elections come around.

The President made the statement in commenting on a remark by Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican national committee, that his party plans to make the issue one of the main points of the congressional campaign.

He gave two reasons for his belief a balanced budget can not be achieved in the fiscal year beginning next July.

One, he said, was the need of tax adjustments to remove injustices. He indicated this would necessitate some loss in revenue.

Cites Other Reason

He gave expenses of the farm program as the other reason. Eisenhower said these are unusually high because of the drought and related problems.

Eisenhower noted that he will meet with Republican congressional leaders Dec. 17, 18 and 19 to discuss the administration's legislative program for the session of Congress starting in January. The President said the conferences would sort of firm up the program now being drafted by the executive branch.

He said that in addition to his meetings with GOP congressional leaders he will make every effort to get full agreement from the Democrats on what he regards as bipartisan legislation, particularly in the field of foreign affairs.

On Other Matters

On other matters, the President:

1. Announced a program to make possible the continued flow of food into drought disaster areas at reduced prices until Congress reconvenes. Eisenhower said drought conditions in many parts of the country have continued to increase in severity.

2. Said he plans to spend Thanksgiving Day in August Ga. with his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, the major's wife and their three children.

3. Declared that at the forthcoming Bermuda conference, representatives of the United States, Great Britain and France have a lot of common problems to discuss. He mentioned the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Korean situation and Asia in

One Says Regardless Of Governor, Plan Of Wicks Will Hold

LATE BULLETIN

An unimpeachable source on Capitol Hill, Albany, reported to The Freeman this afternoon that a move was on foot in the State Senate to recall the Williamson reapportionment bill, passed yesterday by the Senate.

The source said the senators, angered by Governor Thomas E. Dewey's stand in the Wicks' case, would table the bill, recess or adjourn.

The ire of the senators it was said was so great over the Governor's stand that it would mean the special session would amount to nothing.

Lt. Governor Wicks under this situation would then still be in his position as Senate majority leader and president pro tem of the Senate.

Albany, Nov. 18 (AP)—Acting Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks was expected to submit his resignation late today as Senate leader, in accordance with an agreement reached with his Republican Senate colleagues.

An authoritative source said the resignation would be filed immediately after adjournment of the special session of the Legislature. Whether it would be effective immediately or in the near future was not determined.

It was not determined, either, whether Gov. Dewey would go along with the plan to have Wicks step out after the special session.

Dewey, his leadership of the Republican Party at stake, was reported to be insisting that Wicks quit while the Senate was in session or that the Senate force him out through a formal resolution declaring vacant his position as majority leader and temporary president of that body.

It was plain that Dewey was angered at the action of the Republican senators late yesterday in deciding not to bring the ouster action on to the Senate floor—in return for which Wicks said he would resign the leadership after the session.

One Republican senator, who declined to be quoted by name, said the plan worked out at the private conference of the GOP majority would remain in force regardless of Dewey's wishes.

Wicks told a reporter early this afternoon that the turn of events was "neither a victory for Wicks nor a victory for Dewey but a victory for the separation of the powers of the executive and legislative branches of the government."

Asked whether he planned to announce his resignation from his rostrum as presiding officer of the senate, prior to final adjournment, the Kingston senator said:

"I will absolutely make no announcement from the rostrum."

A reporter inquired whether Wicks would make an announcement at a news conference later.

Wicks hesitated, and the reporter withdrew the question.

Wicks said, "I am definitely angling to finish today."

A short time earlier, Sen. Gilbert V. Seelye, GOP Senate conference chairman, announced that the conference committee on the Wicks case would make its report after final adjournment of the Senate today.

There remained apparently only one question: Whether Dewey would insist on resignation or ouster of Wicks before adjournment.

The governor's press secretary, Harry J. O'Donnell, issued this statement with reference to reports that Dewey would call another special session of the Legislature if the issue were not cleaned up at this one:

"The governor's call for this special session contained a specific agenda."

"So long as the Senate is in session he has no reason to be (Continued on Page 6, Col. 6)

Senator Probes Subversion In Plants in Massachusetts

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) convened his spy-probing subcommittee in Boston today to look into possible subversion in General Electric plants in nearby Lynn and Everett.

At least 18 GE workers have been summoned to testify at a closed hearing of McCarthy's permanent investigating subcommittee.

Two of them identified themselves at Nathaniel Mills, 36, and Robert Goodwin, 38, both of Lynn. They said in a statement they intend to invoke the fifth amendment.

"Despite the threats of our jobs and livelihoods," they said, "we shall not cooperate in putting the Constitution of the United States as McCarthy is doing in his efforts to terrorize his political opponents."

McCarthy said of today's hearing: "The entire picture here is a by-product of our findings at Ft. Monmouth (N.J.)."

McCarthy has been sandwiching an investigation into security measures at General Electric plants into his investigation of Ft. Monmouth, headquarters of the Army Signal Corps' top-secret defense against atomic attacks.

The Wisconsin senator has said GE security measures were lax for years, although now improved. The General Electric Co., one of the nation's key defense firms, said in a statement from Schenectady last night that its security measures often exceed government standards.

Zoning Board To Review Three Designation Bids

The local zoning board will consider three applications for zone designations at a meeting at 8 p. m. today in the city court room.

The application of Dominick Perry for a business zone designation on a property at 17 to 19 Lindsley avenue is accompanied by petitions for and against it.

Perry seeks to use a garage on the property for storage of vehicles used in a milk business.

Another application to be aired is that of Thomas Fitzgerald, of 295 West Chestnut street, who seeks to use a 25 by 50 foot garage for storage in conjunction with a tile business.

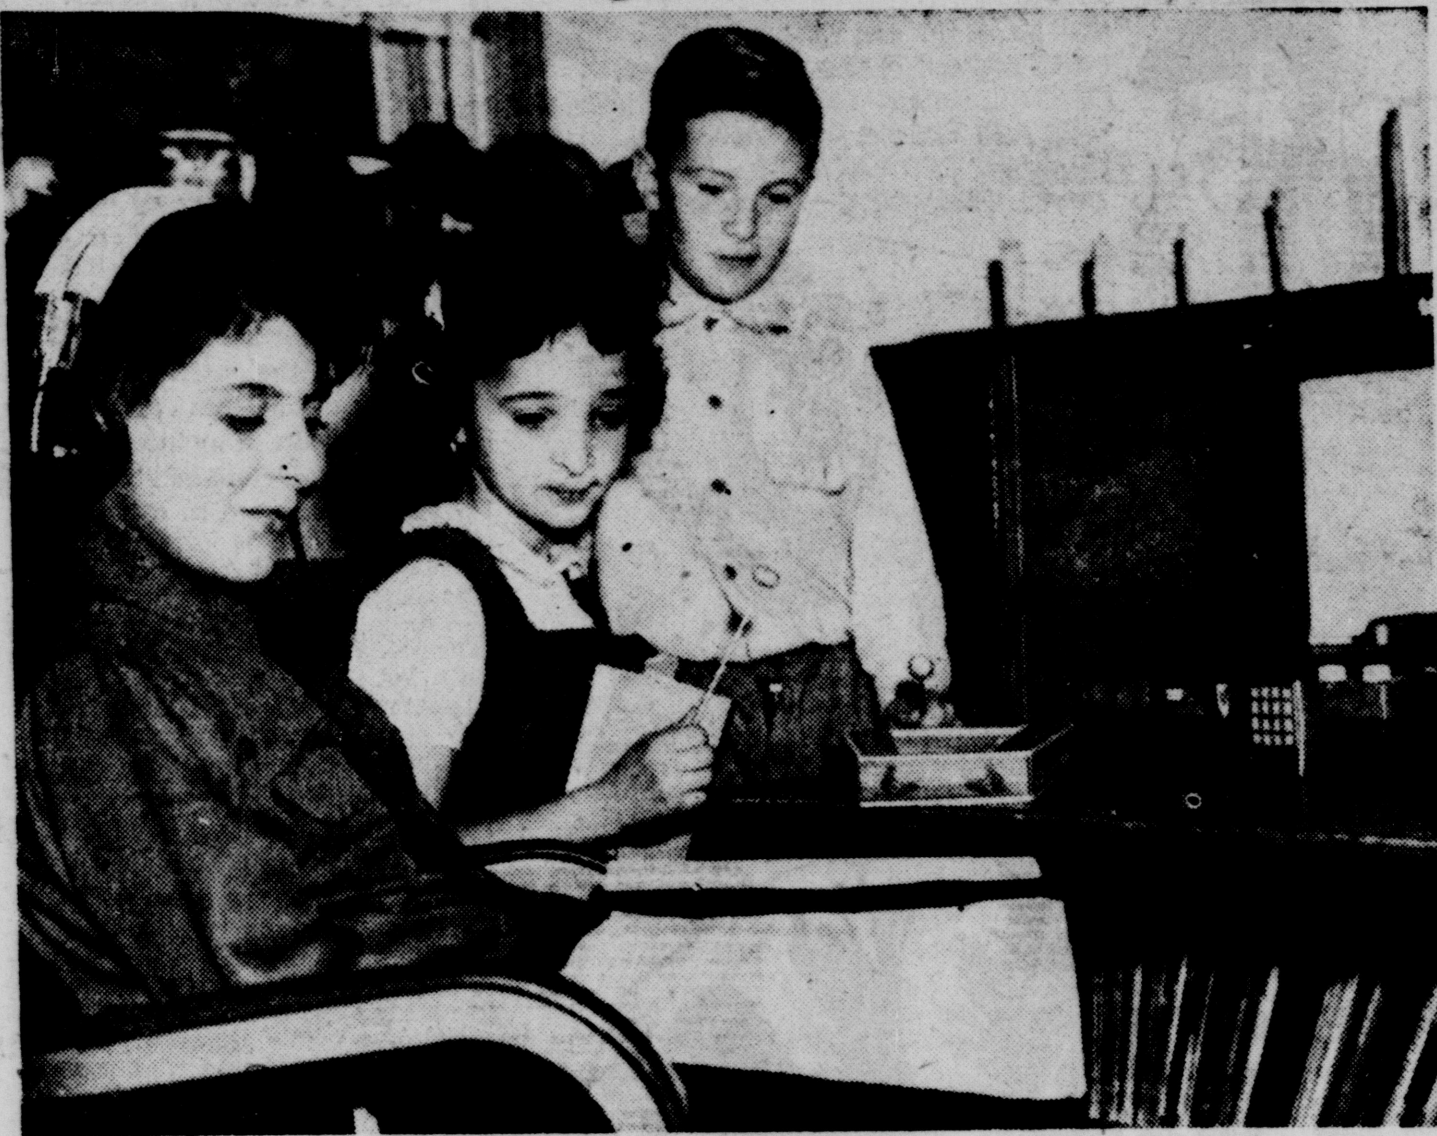

Mrs. Corliss Sedaker, of 238 Albany avenue, who conducts a tourists' home, seeks a business zone designation to establish a tea room.

Attorney Joseph Avis, zoning board chairman, will conduct the session.

weave and equipment was thrown into the aisle. The men were stumbling over that trying to get out. A couple of the boys fell down and we threw them out."

He estimated that the plane was cleared, except for the crew and the trapped paratroopers, within one minute after the plane "hit something."

The plane was based at Charleston, S. C.

Maj. M. R. Fowler, public information officer of the 18th Airborne Corps, said it was flying at about 1,200 feet before starting its dive. Fowler said the pilot veered sharply to the left, apparently trying to avoid hitting more of the drifting parachutists.

The plane smashed through 300 yards of scrub pines, exploded and burned.

Eisenhower Waits

general. The President said that if he, Britain's Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel can eliminate some of the causes of friction in various places in the world, that will be all to the good.

Would Take Measures

4. Promised that the government would take all necessary measures including the extension of credit, to prevent a business recession or depression if any sign of such a condition appears. The President added that he is kept fully informed regarding the situation by Arthur Burns, the chairman of his economic advisory council.

5. Said he still is hard at work on a statement to the American people regarding national security, including continental defense. The important thing on that, Eisenhower said, is the timing. It is necessary to make sure no unnecessary alarm or hysteria is caused, he added. The President did not specifically mention the nation's atomic program in this connection, but reports are that the statement being prepared will deal also with that matter.

6. Indicated he may have discussed with Pakistan officials the possibility of U. S. military aid in return for bases in Pakistan. He said that in such matters it is necessary to proceed most cautiously lest it cause alarm or unrest in neighboring countries, such as India.

The President's news conference again was well attended, obviously in the expectation, for one thing, that he would deal again with the Harry Dexter White case. Last week's session was devoted almost exclusively to that case.

BERMUDA TALKS ARE JUSTIFIED

Nothing could be more reasonable than the scheduled meeting at Bermuda Dec. 4 of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel.

The evident failure of hopes for a four-power talk including the Soviet Union brings the West to a new phase. The question is simple: What do we do now?

We start with the assumption that Russia is interested right now in maintaining the status quo. That means not solving any of the pressing world problems.

Western leaders therefore must decide what new approaches, if any, they can develop toward these problems.

The most urgent is Germany. In the absence of some kind of accord with Russia, there is no present prospect of German unity nor of a peace treaty that will embrace both Soviet and Allied zones of the country. That means the West must go ahead on the basis of a divided Germany.

But how? The West German leaders are clamoring for greater political sovereignty over a land now greatly restored economically and growing stronger by the day. So-called "peace contracts" have been drafted to permit greater German civil authority, but they are held up because they have been linked with the European army project.

France, creator of the European army plan, is now the greatest obstacle to its approval. Nothing has convinced the French that even under international safeguards the Germans will not somehow manage to dominate the continental military scene if allowed to return.

Diplomats in both Britain and America believe, however, that this issue cannot be dragged out indefinitely. If EDC cannot be put across in France, then some other means probably must be found for drawing Germany into the Western defense orbit, possibly through membership in NATO. Military men consider it a waste of strength and an actual peril not to have Germany's potential at work for the West.

Perhaps, as a first step, the three Allied leaders meeting at Bermuda will find some way to separate the peace contracts from the military problem so the Bonn government may acquire the enlarged sovereignty it has well earned. After that, they may broach alternatives to EDC, if France makes clear that ratification of the European army is a dim possibility.

Mr. Eisenhower, Sir Winston and Premier Laniel can profitably re-examine at Bermuda the whole pattern of Western strategy. There are signs, for instance, that Europe now feels war with Russia is a much less likely happening than does the U. S. The West needs to find new common ground in a fresh appraisal of the Communist threat. If we do not have a common understanding of the danger, how can we erect an effective common defense?

In the light of this "new look," these leaders might also make a new determination of the defense contributions of the respective countries. France constantly complains it is overstrained by the Indo-China war and cannot therefore do more in Europe. Possibly its European load could be eased.

If the Bermuda talks prove in the end to be simply exploratory, they will still be justified. For the West needs fresh imagination and invention at this stage in its diplomacy.

HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT

During the last fiscal year, the states collected $10,500,000,000 from their citizens—which works out to $68 for every man, woman and child in the country.

In the same year, the federal government collected $65,200,000,000 in taxes—or $410 for each and every American.

This comes to a total of $478.04 per capita, or close to $2,000 a year for a family of four—and it doesn't include local taxes, for which figures are not available.

The point is that taxes, direct and indirect, are the biggest single expense borne by a great many of our families—just as they are for a great many of our businesses. There

SCIENTIFIC ATHEISM
San Francisco, Nov. 17—A new phrase has come into existence, namely, "Scientific Atheistic Knowledge," and it is actually being advocated. I quote from the "Sovetskaya Moldavia" and these are the words of Professor N. A. Ilin:

"The dissemination of scientific-atheistic knowledge must play an important role in the working people's Communist education, in cleansing from people's minds capitalist survivals, the prejudices and harmful traditions of the old society. . . . Religious survivals still remain in the minds of many of our people, especially in the rural areas, and without comprehensive, scientific rebuttal of religious tales, myths and fabrications, without explaining religion's true historical and economic roots, it will be impossible to ensure the people's cultural growth."

In the current relaxation from excitement over the ideological struggle in the world, the tendency is to become more tolerant of fundamental differences. In our true quest for peace, we turn from disturbing antagonisms in the hope that some way can be found to reconcile the irreconcilable, to discover a bridge over the chasm of divergent thought.

We cannot desert God for peace and that is what we are asked to do. How can there be peace without morality and how can there be morality without God?

Professor Ilin, as a Marxist, accepts a materialistic interpretation of man and society and therefore for him no problems of morality present themselves. His ideas of life are determined only by the pressures of necessity.

To understand the treatment of prisoners of war in Korea, it is essential to realize that religion and morality are one and that those who reject God can brutalize themselves so that the commission of an atrocity involves no greater resistance to conscience than the extermination of bedbugs.

In recent years, such atrocities have only been committed by the Nazis and the Communists, the two godless powers in European life. The Nazis destroyed human life scientifically; the Communists do not bother about the method so long as the end, which is the removal of the impediments of their progress, is attained. When prisoners of war are in the way, if their maintenance is costly, if they require care and treatment—liquidate them!

War is an ugly business at best; at worst it is bestial. Nevertheless, during the 19th and the early part of the 20th centuries, considerable progress was made in lessening the inhumanity of war, particularly in the treatment of prisoners. Recognizing that soldiers do not have any voice in deciding whether wars take place; that they do not select the enemy and usually bear him no malice; that theirs but to do or die, the more civilized nations have accepted a code for the treatment of those men who are caught in the trap of international politics and are separated from their countrymen by the failures of strategy of other men's devising. The Geneva Convention stands as a monumental record of a moral way of life.

The first international effort in this direction was a convention signed in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1864 for the amelioration of the condition of the wounded and sick of armies of the field. This meeting was the result of the appeal to the conscience of the world by Jean Henry Dunant in whose honor the flag of his country, Switzerland, was adopted as the symbol of mercy. This is called the Red Cross and societies bearing that name were organized in most civilized countries. In 1867, these societies were banded together internationally. The American society was organized in 1881 by Clara Barton.

The Geneva Convention lay down the rules for the housing, feeding, medical attention and rights of prisoners of war. The International Red Cross has been given the authority to inspect prisoners-of-war camps to see to it that they conform with the Conventions. Soviet Russia, Communist China and North Korea do not recognize the Geneva Conventions; they do not permit inspection by the International Red Cross. Therefore, they are not governed by any rules of conduct based on morality, but apply their own systems based upon nothing but their own necessities.

Their abuse of prisoners of war, as witnessed daily in the so-called talks at Panmunjom, is an example of what can occur if there are no rules. This we have to learn to anticipate from such people; those who expect anything better are likely to be disappointed.

That Body of Yours

A HERNIA SHOULD BE REPAIRED

When a patient with hernia (rupture) can drive into the hospital grounds on a Monday, undergo an operation for the hernia, and drive out again Friday, at home for a few days, then resume his former work (light or office work), it seems strange that so many men refuse operation. These patients allow the hernia condition to progress to the point where they are poor risks for surgery, but often the condition makes an emergency operation necessary.

In Geriatrics, Drs. W. Debenham and Cooper Davis, San Francisco, report the study of the results obtained under emergency conditions in hernia and operations done when the surgeon can select or choose the patient on whom he will operate. There were 365 operations studied in a San Francisco hospital during a three-year period. Of these, 194 patients were men over 55 years of age at the time of operation and the remainder constituted a similar group of patients from 35 to 55 in a comparable control series. The main interest of these two surgeons was a comparison between those operated on as emergency cases because of strangulation and obstruction and those who had an elective operation at a time of their own choosing.

Comparison was made as to the death rate, sickness after operation, and the number of cases in which the hernia returned. Operations were all done by the same method and suture material.

The results of this study showed the death rate in emergency hernia operations was 10 per cent as compared to less than one-half of 1 per cent in those hernias which were operated on at a time "of our choosing."

Recurrence, or return, of the hernia is not appreciably greater in elderly patients than in a similar group of young adults.

Drs. Debenham and Davis feel that unless there is some special reason for not operating, all hernias should be repaired regardless of age. "Elective or choosing time and condition of hernia in patients over 55 years of age is a procedure which gives good results and carries a low death rate and a short period of convalescence. Unrepaired hernias in the elderly often result in strangulation, bowel obstruction. The frequency and severity of strangulation and obstruction increase with age."

"Unless definite contraindications are present, hernia should be repaired when discovered regardless of chronologic age. It is unfortunate that many men over 55 years of age endure the discomfort of hernia because they have been led to fear the complications of surgery and have been given the impression that the chance of hernia returning is great."

The above information should reassure them that hernias should be repaired at any age.

Our Changing World

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington—(NEA)—The rise of the late Harry Dexter White—now publicly labeled a Communist spy by Attorney General Herbert Brownell—is attributed to two things by people who worked with him in the Treasury and the International Monetary Fund from 1934 to 1947.

The first was his tremendous drive for power. His former associates characterize him as an intellectual snob, though he had been born of poor Polish-Jew immigrant parents. The name may have been Weiss. Harry White recorded his birth on Treasury records as Boston, Mass., Oct. 28, 1882.

His childhood records are completely barren, but he served in World War 1 in France and was discharged a first lieutenant. He held A.B. and M.A. degrees from Stanford and a Ph.D. from Harvard. He taught economics at Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., from 1932 to 1934 and then came to Washington as a $5600-per-year economist.

He was short and balding. He had a mustache and wore glasses. He did not smoke and he drank very little.

He had a sharp tongue, was terribly sarcastic and tough on people who opposed him. He was unquestionably brilliant in the field of international finance, but arrogant in thinking he knew all the answers. He used to lecture reporters in explaining new Treasury policies and he had no patience with those who could not follow him.

Former associates now say White apparently saw the rise of communism as the wave of the future and he wanted to be a part of it. But the most White got out of it was believed to be gifts of vodka, caviar and a rug from the Soviet embassy.

Staff Investigated

He covered up his sympathies for communism well. When someone once commented that one of his aides looked like a Bolshevik, White ordered the man to go out and get a haircut.

White's staff, incidentally, came to include half a dozen men who have been under investigation for alleged Communist sympathy: Sol Adler, Frank Coe, Harold Glasser, William Taylor, Ludwig Ullman and Nathan Silvermaster.

The second big influence in the rise of White was Mrs. Henrietta Klotz, assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau. She was far more than a confidential secretary, being a real power in Treasury office politics. She recognized White's brilliance and did all she could to advance his career.

Henrietta Klotz and her husband became close friends of White, his wife, Ann Terry White and their three children. Mrs. White was an author of children's books. The Whites lived modestly in Bethesda, Md., a Washington suburb.

One of White's first moves was to persuade Secretary Morgenthau to split up the old Division of Research, for which he worked first. It became the Division of Statistics, Division of Tax Research and Division of Monetary Research. White became head of Monetary Research.

From that time on White became a real power in Treasury. One of the things that helped him was a 1941 order from the secretary, putting White in charge of all problems on foreign relations.

He Helped Design Plan

White was violently anti-Nazi, however, and he is today generally held to have been the principal architect of the Morgenthau plan for reducing postwar Germany to the status of an agricultural nation by destroying its industrial potential. The plan was blocked by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and others at Quebec, in 1943.

White's hand was next apparent in planning the Bretton Woods conference of 1944. White headed the American delegation that worked this out with Britain's John Maynard Keynes. It resulted in creation of the International Bank for Reconstruction and the International Monetary Fund. It was at this time, too, that President Truman got his second warning on White and nothing was done about it.

Strangely enough, White was as pro-British in Bretton Woods planning as he had been anti-British over Lend-Lease. And though Soviet Russia was urged to attend the Bretton Woods conference and join both the Bank and the Fund, it declined.

When he was hailed before the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1948, Harry White denied that he had ever entertained any Communist associations or beliefs. He declared: "My creed is the American creed. . . . I believe in government of law, not of man, where law is above man and not man above law."

His friends in the big hearing room applauded his long statement. Three days later he died, carrying to the grave secrets of a spy mystery that may never be completely solved.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

The Brooklyn reader of this column who so kindly sent me an old Kingston Opera House program dated Nov. 3 and 5, 1914 brought back some fond memories. I notice one item on the front page. "Look around now and choose the nearest exit to your seat. In case of fire walk (not run) to that exit. Do not try to beat your neighbor to the street."

The next thing he knew he was on the ground, and Cobb was banging his skull against the concrete base of a stanchion.

Truman's reactions in all his political scraps reveal the same disposition and ethics. And when he threatened in his historic letter to a writer on music who had disparaged his daughter's singing to unman him with a kick, that was no poetic figure of speech.

The moral is not that he can't be licked, for he is vulnerable not only in the White case but in many others. The moral is that anyone who picks a fight with Harry Truman has got to tear him apart, for he is no more inhibited than a badger.

The whole American people underestimated this man's capacity for evil, including his power as a demagogue. He was sprung on us with only a local reputation, and a group of schemers realized that Roosevelt was dying and secretly knew that they had a wild man under cover.

Truman's Defense Would Have Been Better if He Had Told Whole Truth

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 18 — The whole truth, and nothing but the truth would have been a better defense for former President Truman than the attempt in his radio-television talk of Monday night to make a political speech of the "give-em-hell" variety which he has used so often in the past.

Merely to call Attorney General Brownell a liar was not an answer to the nation-wide demand for the facts—and all the facts—of the episode wherein Harry Dexter White, admittedly known by Mr. Truman in February 1946 to have been accused in FBI reports of being tied up with a Communist spy ring, was nevertheless given a government post of international importance.

The curious argument that Mr. Truman retained White in office in order to keep him in surveillance sounded impressive on the radio-television because it implied that the whole thing was known to high officials and that the FBI was party to such an agreement. Now, on the sworn testimony of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, the American people know that the FBI didn't favor that course and that it would have been impracticable to carry it out and that, indeed, if it was anybody's intention to do so, no precautions actually were taken—as the FBI chief testifies—to prevent Harry White from continuing his dangerous activities in transmitting information through subordinates and close associates who were also accused of being in the Soviet spy ring.

Also Mr. Truman failed to tell the people why he wrote two effusive letters of commendation—one when White became U. S. Executive Director of the International Monetary Fund in April, 1946, and the other on April 7, 1947, just after White resigned.

Mr. Truman's outbursts of indignation against the attorney general sound hollow in the face of the testimony of Mr. Brownell and Mr. Hoover. It would have been far better for the former President if he had from the very start admitted that he had received the FBI report, that he regarded it seriously but that he didn't fire White because he wasn't completely convinced by the record then, or because those persons to whom he delegated the reading of it didn't convince him it was a clear case.

Maybe Mr. Truman got mixed up between a matter of security inside the government and a matter of espionage in the courts. In the latter instance, wire-tap evidence cannot be used, and in the former it wasn't necessary to furnish any evidence to anyone except what President himself got a suspect feed. Many people generally have not understood the difference between a loyalty procedure which involves the right of the government to dismiss an employee without a court proceeding, and a grand jury indictment and prosecution thereafter based on vaguely written laws of espionage on which it is difficult even today to convict anyone except a person who has virtually confessed to treason.

Mr. Truman might well have made a clean breast of the whole business and told the country that the climate today is different than what it was in 1946, and that many things have been verified today that weren't as clear then. It would have been a more plausible defense politically.

As it is, the former President with an emotional speech Monday night endeavored through political tactics and name-calling to confuse the issue and leave an impression that it is all just partisan politics. It was a most unfortunate, indeed, in spite of the fact that so many Democrats in Congress have fought intensely against Communist infiltration in the government, the Democratic party would now range itself on the side of softness toward communism inside the government. It would make voters hesitate to return the Democratic party back to power because it had not frankly acknowledged the mistakes made in handling Communists in government during the last 20 years.

An example of the reaction here to the Truman speech is to be found in an editorial in "The Washington Post" which has vigorously denounced the methods of congressional committee investigations and has for many months taken the so-called "liberal" side of the debate on the issue. The editorial appeared before Mr. Brownell's or Mr. Hoover's testimony before the Senate committee was known and read in part: "Whatever Mr. Truman's motives may have been, he has stooped to repeated deception of the people as to how this case was handled. His shifting explanations leave a question as to whether there will be still other versions of what was done as new facts are brought to light. We cannot help thinking that his jibes at Mr. Brownell would have come with better grace if he had acknowledged his own faulty judgment and his lack of candor in accounting to the people for his stewardship." AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 17.—The case of Harry Dexter White ought to teach President Eisenhower and his lacy circle of off-Republicans in a fight with Harry Truman you have to kick him, bite his nose off, gouge his eyes and rake his face with a busted glass.

The distressing experience of Herbert Brownell and Harold Velde, of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, recalls a fight between Billy Cobb and the umpire, under the Washington grandstand in which Evans, a very good formal boxer, undertook to lick a wildcat according to the rules. They had had a jam during the ball game and a "challenge" had been issued and, of course, accepted. After the game, Evans stood up to Cobb with his fists raised and the next thing he knew he was on the ground, and Cobb was banging his skull against the concrete base of a stanchion.

Truman's reactions in all his political scraps reveal the same disposition and ethics. And when he threatened in his historic letter to a writer on music who had disparaged his daughter's singing to unman him with a kick, that was no poetic figure of speech.

The moral is not that he can't be licked, for he is vulnerable not only in the White case but in many others. The moral is that anyone who picks a fight with Harry Truman has got to tear him apart, for he is no more inhibited than a badger.

The whole American people underestimated this man's capacity for evil, including his power as a demagogue. He was sprung on us with only a local reputation, and a group of schemers realized that Roosevelt was dying and secretly knew that they had a wild man under cover.

The best revelation of the real why of his rise is "Man of Independence," written by an infatuated friend, Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, which he inherited from his father. Daniels believes he can perform his professional duty to the public and serve as a flunkie for a political boss at the same time.

I don't know how useful he was as a flunkie but he is a terrible bore on paper and he uses the word "liberal" to describe a movement to nullify most of the Constitution and reduce the people to the status of serfs of the state. However, he does know details about Truman which have never been published by any other authority.

Only in "Man of Independence" are we told that Truman has been "liberal" to describe the mysterious and pompous Max Lowenthal, the lawyer who, a few years ago, emerged from his shadowy surroundings as author of a book blasting the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

I will not attempt to review that book, which seems to flow from a bitter personal grudge, but I note as significant the fact that this man with this attitude toward this important "security" arm first picked Truman for vice president.

They met when Truman became chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating phases of the oil industry. Lowenthal was counsel led and recognized in Truman qualities which he admired. Presently he introduced him to Justice Brandeis, "casual" but with the secret feeling of a man offering a well-earned accolade.

You find a clue to Daniels' concept of "liberalism" in a side-long observation that Oil Wellhead "liberalism" was a great judge "of the American liberal tradition." He was also the patron, you may remember, of Alger Hiss, possibly without knowing that he was a traitor, not that that necessarily would have made any difference to Holmes.

He actually drooled over Harold Ladd, an English communist, Daniels says. Truman humbly said he was not used to meeting

Diabetes, if kept under control by well established medical methods, need not interfere seriously with the work of the one who has it. On the other hand, undetected diabetes, even though not severe enough to keep one off the job, may be a serious handicap to the worker.

Dr. Bight, chairman of the Ulster County Medical Society Committee for the Diabetes Detection Drive, stressed those two points today in urging both workers and employers to support the program of screening tests designed to discover unknown cases of diabetes. These tests are being featured this week.

"Many large industries in various parts of the country have encouraged their workers to take these tests, and the results have been excellent," he said. "At least 60,000 persons become diabetic each year. It is highly worthwhile therefore to examine large numbers of people for the sake of finding these new cases."

"The undetected diabetic is likely to feel somewhat under par a good deal of the time. He may stay on the job with only occasional days off for illness, but he is never at peak efficiency. That is bad from the employer's standpoint, but it also means that the individual is himself in danger. For diabetes left without proper care often develops serious complications."

"Once brought under medical control, the diabetic can live and work in normal fashion. In fact, sometimes he is a better worker than his friends in normal health, for the self-discipline he learns to use in controlling his diabetes also shows up in his general habits of work."

Woodstock Man Is Injured in Mishap

Stephan Barr, 49, of Woodstock was treated at Kingston Hospital early this morning for lacerations of the forehead and scalp sustained when his car left Route 28 at Glenford and struck some guard rails, according to a report at the Ulster County Sheriff's Office.

Barr told Deputies Albert Eisele and Wesley O'Brien that he was traveling east when he was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and forced to run off the road onto the shoulder. Losing control of the car he swerved across the highway to the left side, striking several guard posts, veering then to the right side again before coming to a stop, he said.

The entire left side, front and undercarriage were damaged, deputies reported.

Reapportionment Is Slowed by Wicks' Case

Albany, Nov. 18 (AP)—Reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts marked time today in the middle of the legislative battle over Governor Dewey's demand for the ouster of Acting Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks.

Republican leaders, plagued by the Dewey-Wicks controversy, also sought to iron out more minor differences between their colleagues before approving an amended redistricting measure. Several lawmakers objected to projected redistricting on the ground it unfairly influenced their reelection.

Engineers Hear About Silicones

Tuesday evening's meeting of the Mid-Hudson Sub-Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was attended by approximately 75 engineers, who heard a talk on the relatively new material known as silicones.

The meeting held in the auditorium of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company at Poughkeepsie, got underway at 7:45 and lasted until 11 o'clock after which refreshments were served.

Plant Trip in December

The next activity of the organization will be a plant trip in the early part of December. Members will be notified when arrangements have been completed.

Local engineers attending the meeting were F. E. Bourke and T. C. Cerwonka of Hercules Powder Company, and a large guest list included local residents Charles Horne and John Klobus, also of the Hercules Powder Company.

The nominating committee to select next year's executive committee was completed by the election of three members, William Legier of Central Hudson, R. K. Fletsam of The Texas Company and J. L. O'Neill of the Daystrom Electric Corporation.

Five previously elected to the committee were Douglas Knight of IBM, Hugo Schlatter of Hercules Powder Company, George Furlong of Central Hudson, Kurt Strauss of The Texas Company and Frederick Evans, retired.

Explains Silicones

A. C. Hetherington, materials engineers of the Silicone Products Department of General Electric, gave the very interesting talk on silicones, utilizing a vast display of actual designs together with plotted experimental data.

The highly publicized application of silicones in car polish is but a small segment of the wide range of uses already arrived at, he said. Among these uses are jet engine components, mold release fluids, and shock mounts with high and low temperature cushioning properties.

Eight Specimens Show Sugar Trace in Diabetes Tests

A total of 1,467 specimens of urine have been submitted during the first two days of Diabetes Detection Week. It was announced today by Dr. Curtis Bight, chairman of the drive.

Of these specimens eight had "at least a trace" of sugar, indicating that further testing should be made. In cases where sugar is detected, it was pointed out, the person is notified and his private physician, if one is listed. Further testing is handled by the private physician.

Mostly From Schools

A total of 83 specimens were submitted on the first day and 1,384 yesterday, Dr. Bight said. The bulk of the specimens are from local schools but many adult specimens from all over the country are also being received. Drug stores all over the county are co-operating in the drive. Everyone is urged to bring a specimen of urine, labelled with his name and that of his physician, to the nearest drug store.

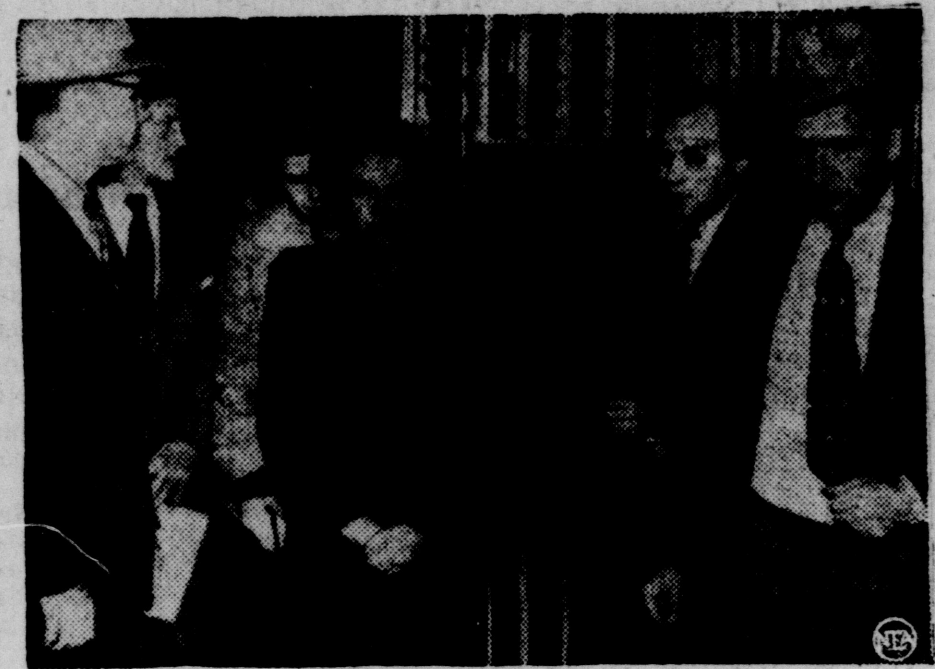

Of the 83 specimens received Monday, 54 were from the Mother Cabrini School and 29 from adults. Of the 1,384 specimens received yesterday, 639 were from the George Washington School, 488 from School 6 and 187 from School 4. There were 70 specimens received by drug stores throughout the county.

Hall to Tell His Version

Under the watchful eyes of U.S. Marshal William Tatman (right), and guards, Mrs. Bonnie Heady and Carl Hall (manacled) are taken from their cells at Kingston, Mo. The couple are on their way to court where Hall will tell his version of the kidnap-slashing of Bobby Greenlease. (NEA Telephoto).

U. S. to Conclude lease, in her mid-40s, climaxed a day in which the government drove hard with witness after witness to wrap up its case against the couple, both of whom have pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Greenlease's voice was firm as she told of her first talk over the telephone with the kidnapers last Oct. 4, six days after her boy's abduction.

A federal jury, charged solely with determining whether Hall and Mrs. Heady should die for their crime, listened attentively as she related the first telephone conversation:

"I said, 'this is Mrs. Greenlease. We are willing and ready to pay the money, but first I must know that my son is alive and well.' He said, 'I can assure you your son is alive and well.'"

"He said, 'the request * * * speak to your son, we could not carry out. We were afraid to take him to a telephone.' I said, 'well, would you ask him two questions for me?' and he said, 'yes.'"

"I asked him to ask Bobby the name of the driver of our automobile in Europe this summer and I asked him to ask Bobby what he built in his play room the night, the last night that he was home. "I said, 'I am asking you to ask Bobby these questions because there are other people claiming to have Bobby. If you can give me these answers, we will know you are the people who have him and that he is alive.'"

Promised to Call
Mrs. Greenlease said the kidnaper promised to call her back within an hour and did phone her about 1:30 the same morning and told her:

"I phoned them but Bobby wouldn't talk. He just dummed up."

Mrs. Greenlease said that on her second conversation with the kidnaper he told her he could assure her Bobby was alive because he saw him that afternoon and "he says his parrot whistles."

"Lady he is driving us nuts," she quoted the kidnaper as saying. "We have earned this money." Mrs. Greenlease said she had two other telephone conversations with the kidnaper and each time Hall assured her the boy was alive and well.

Dulles Declares

nations must abandon their joint defense arrangements.

Dulles said that the real truth is that "the Soviet rulers are gravely preoccupied with the mood of the captive workers" in eastern Europe. Alluding to anti-Soviet rioting, he added:

Were Being Exploited
"The events of last June, in Eastern Germany and East Berlin, show that the workers were being exploited to the breaking point."

The Soviet rulers now refuse to meet to discuss European problems is not a sign of strength, but of fear.

Dulles shared the convention platform with another member of the cabinet, Secretary of Labor James Mitchell. The Eisenhower Administration has been the target of many attacks on the CIO convention floor here this week. The convention yesterday ratified a no-raiding agreement with the AFL. Then it adopted another resolution directing CIO leaders to continue negotiations aimed at eventual merger of the AFL and CIO.

Sen. Wicks Case

lieve another special session will be necessary."

Both Houses of the Legislature went into recess after very brief sessions this morning during which they transacted no business.

The Senate recessed after five minutes, on motion of Walter J. Mahoney, acting for Wicks as majority leader.

Mahoney announced a GOP Senate conference. It began almost immediately.

It was said the purpose of the conference was to discuss possible changes in the administration bill to reapportion the Senate and Assembly districts. But an informed source reported the conference agenda might be broadened to take up the Wicks' case and Dewey's adamant stand.

Changes Are Proposed

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP)—The assistant market administrator of the New York milkshed today proposed fluid price formula changes to prevent what he termed an estimated $687,000 loss to dairy producers next month because of a strike. Dr. Anson J. Pollard testified on the effects of the October New York city milk truck drivers' strike at a federal-state hearing on milk pricing. Loss of a fluid market during the strike, under normal formula provisions, would cut the December Class 1-A (fluid) milk price 12 cents per hundredweight (about 47 quarts), Pollard said.

Demand Is Made To Re-Surface, Improve Route 209

A tentative resolution demanding an "adequate" highway between Kingston and Port Jervis was adopted last night at a meeting of the executive committee of the "209 Association" which was organized recently.

Purpose of the organization is to re-surface and improve Route 209.

Attending from Kingston were Adrian Kaplan, president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, and Lawrence Quilty.

The tentative resolution will be presented to the State Highway Department in Albany by a delegation. Representatives of the executive committee will also conduct assemblies of Ulster, Sullivan and Orange counties in regard to the wording of the resolution in its final form.

Supervisors Attend

Among those attending the meeting last night were supervisors from the Towns of Rochester, Mamaroneck and Deer Park.

The committee also went on record in favor of the proposed Hudson river bridge at Kingston.

Next meeting of the committee will be held Friday, Nov. 27, at the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston.

Roseland Is Sold To 2 Petromales

The Roseland Restaurant at 440 Washington avenue has been sold to Argentina and Pasquale Petromale of this city, it was announced today.

The restaurant, formerly owned by Lawrence Anderson and Theodore Ehresman, will be operated by Dominick Petromale, assisted by his three brothers, it was said. Title changed hands Monday. R. E. Craft, local business broker, negotiated the deal.

The restaurant consists of a bar and grill, a large dining and banquet hall and apartments and rooms upstairs. It is a concrete, brick and steel building erected in 1932.

To Improve Building

Roseland has catered to wedding parties and banquets in addition to the usual bar and grill business. The new owners announce that they expect to make various improvements to the building and will continue the business substantially along the same lines.

Attorney Louis Bruhn represents the sellers and N. LeVan Haver the buyers.

Call for Harold Taken for 'Help'

A man yelling, "Harold" early last night in the woods near St. Remy had the village thoroughly aroused with two deputy sheriffs, members of the St. Remy Fire Company and citizens beating the brush for almost an hour.

People thought the man, George Winsaw of Box 80, Ulster Park, was yelling "Help."

Seems, however, that Winsaw was looking for his friend to help him bring a deer out of the woods.

Reported to Sheriff

The Ulster County Sheriff's Office received a call at 7:30 p. m. reporting that several people in St. Remy had heard a man in the woods calling for help. The calls appeared to be coming from the rear of the Thomas Eastern farm.

Deputy Sheriffs Delbert Sapp and Chester Wolven were dispatched to the scene and hastily joined some 20 members of the village fire department in a search party. After hallooing through the darkness for about an hour they were informed that the man they were seeking had just turned up out on the Union Center road by the Eastern farm. Explanations followed.

Phone Bell Is Horn

Cape Fair, Mo. (P)—You can get away from telephones, all right, down here in this hilly section of southwestern Missouri. There are practically no phones in the area. But Lyle Chamberlin needed one in his resort business. So he rigged up a mobile radio phone in an automobile in the backyard. Now he can be half a mile down the James river and still hear the phone. It doesn't ring. It honks with a loud blast.

It is against the law to use portraits of living persons on U. S. currency.

Appeal for Eye Pledges by Lions Club Gratifying

Early response to the appeal for eye pledges by the Kingston Lions Club is most gratifying. The campaign sponsored by this organization will continue through Nov. 26.

Due to the fact that speed is necessary in the transplanting of the cornea of a deceased person to a sightless person it is impractical for the eyes to be willed. There is too much delay in the legal procedures involved in a will. For this reason the campaign for pledges is being conducted.

The program of getting eye pledges is designed to aid the sightless regain their sight after a delicate operation in which the corneas are transplanted. To be of use in restoring sight, for another, the eyes must be removed within hours after death and the corneas must be grafted into place within hours. Special containers and fast transportation make this possible.

Take, for instance, the case of an 86 year old man who died at his home in Schenectady. His family knew he had pledged his eyes to the Sight Conservation Society of Northeastern New York to be used after his death to restoration of sight to those who need healthy corneas.

Their telephone call at 3:15 a. m. put the Society into fast action. The surgeon was notified; a special container for delivery of eyes was rushed; all necessary preparations were made. Several long distance calls determined the place of destination . . . a hospital where an eye specialist needed eyes very badly.

Before 6 a. m. the eyes were removed, and placed in a special container and at 7:30 were at the Albany airport. The plane delivered it to New York city and at noon the eyes were in the hands of an expert on cornea transplants. Two blind men were placed on the operating table. Two Schenectady corneas were transplanted into their eyes. Two eyes of a dead man will continue to see.

There is the case of the blind boy in Cleveland. He has been waiting for this operation a long time. The eye bank has problems to settle first. Is the weather right for air travel? Is the boy ready for the operation? Is the operating room free? When all these are answered satisfactorily the eye bank proceeds with the job. The eye bank notifies the air lines and the technicians and within a matter of hours the corneas are grafted into the eyes of the Cleveland boy.

There are many such stories. If they find their way to your heart, clip and mail the coupon today.

Denver (AP)—Idle men who make the Citizens Mission on Denver's skid row their home went to work in the harvest fields. In return for food to be stored at the mission for winter meals. Others worked at the mission, to can, pack and store the food. The superintendent, the Rev. Ernest M. Baber, says the plan saved the mission $40,000 to $50,000 a year in operating costs.

people like that but that after a first meeting he went calling almost every other week.

"During that time," Daniels wrote, "with the help of Lowenthal, Truman made a speech which was completely and comfortably forgotten by hopeful conservatives when he succeeded Roosevelt. It was a broadside against concentrated wealth and the bankers and lawyers in its service."

"The railroad investigations, he said, had shown" that great law firms, which he named, resorted "to tricks which would make an ambulance chaser in a coroner's court blush with shame."

The Carnegie libraries, he said, "were steeped in the blood of the homestead steel workers." The Rockefeller Foundation was "founded on the dead miners of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company."

He also "stated a philosophy" holding that a thousand insurance companies with $4 million each would be just a thousand times better than the Metropolitan with $4 billion.

This was the sleeper who was slipped into the vice presidency by Roosevelt, Sidney Hillman, the railroad unions, Bob Hannegan and Lowenthal, and who four years later attacked Congress for rejecting this "philosophy" and referred to the legislative arm as the "congressional politburo."

Within six months he was President. "His friend, Lowenthal," says Daniels, "was one of those strongly urging him to run for the vice presidency in 1944. And 'Truman was nominated by men speculating beyond the death of Roosevelt who knew what they wanted but did not know what they were getting.'"

Lowenthal shares the hatred of the Roosevelt-Truman cult for House Committee and for the same reasons. The committee got its hands on Lowenthal a few years ago, but Burt Wheeler, the former senator from Montana, who had been defeated by New York money with false charges of anti-Semitism, horned in to twist the proceedings. Out of courtesy the committee gave Wheeler the unprecedented privilege of counseling Lowenthal and making speeches to divert the examiner.

Most of all the committee wanted to know what "groups" Lowenthal represented on a trip to Germany just after the war. He never did answer.

Wynkoop was instructed to contact Mrs. Roy Wynkoop to see if she would instruct a group in this art. Mrs. Poole gave a brief report of the chairman's meeting which she attended. The group voted to contribute pennies at each meeting for the remainder of the year to be presented as a lump sum to the International Friendship for Pennies movement at the end of the year.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Henry R. Decker, food and nutrition, who gave a lesson on the subject of Fish Cookery. Buffet refreshments were served including the scallops and oysters that were the subject of the food demonstration.

New Medical Machine

Houston, Tex., Nov. 18 (AP)—A new medical machine developed here can record a heart beat at the same time it checks the amount of oxygen in your lungs and body cells. Simultaneously, as it checks and records nine body functions, it can detect brain complications and tell a doctor whether his patient needs artificial respiration. Its development was a community project here. First visualized by the staffs of the Southwestern Polio Respiratory Center and Baylor University's College of Medicine, the physiograph was put into practical application by Dr. Leslie Geddes, formerly of McGill University, Montreal, Canada. A team of physiologists, clinical men, physicists and medical technicians combined ideas for Geddes, 32-year-old biophysicist.

Blood Donors Honored At VFW Presentation

Saugerties, Nov. 17—Forty-five employees of the Ferroxcube Corp. were honored Monday at a special presentation program conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary for attaining the plant's quota of 25 pints of blood.

The employees of Ferroxcube exceeded this quota by giving 45 pints on October 15. In February these same employees gave 22 pints. According to Mrs. John E. Drewes, chairman of the VFW Blood Bank a great deal of credit is due to Basil Kane, personnel manager of the plant who personally contacted each employee and signed up 47 out of which 45 were able to give blood.

Kane is a veteran blood giver and has personally given 25 pints. Mrs. Drewes said this was the largest group to give blood at one time. A citation, presented to William Stiffer, Jr., president of Ferroxcube, listed the following donors: Howard Ackerman, John Adams, Margaret Angelo, Thomas Beckert, Sally Bell, Clarence Brower, Beatrice Commerford, Manus A. Donnelly, John A. Doyle, Andrew Dragan, Mrs. Elizabeth Drefin, Mrs. Clara Ercog, James Farnell, Henry France, Howard France, Richard J. Grace, Jr., John Hagadorn, Arthur Hansen, John Hrabar and John Jewett. Also Albert Johnson, Basil Kane, Kay Linden, Walter Linden, James Magee, Judy Magee, Hugh Martin, Frank Meyer, William Moncure, Walter Neidwiske, John O'Connor, William Plimley, Jr., Anna Rawlings, Jacob Rogers, Peter Strich, Donald Sullivan, Kevin Sweeney, Robert Sylvester, Edward Teitler, Raymond Teitler, Harold Van Voorhis, George Vogt, Donald Whipple, Anthony Woerner and Arthur Wright.

At the ceremonies Kay Linden and Margaret Angelo were asked to represent the 45 employees who were to receive the citation. Mrs. Drewes pointed out that Mrs. Linden was the first donor to the blood bank and that she would be the guest of honor at a VFW dinner to be held some time in January. The citation was first presented to Basil Kane for his leadership and for carrying the full responsibility for the project. However, Kane asked that the citation be made to Stiffer.

Mrs. Drewes when making the presentation stated that she was deeply gratified at the splendid cooperation the blood bank received from the Ferroxcube Corp. and employees who participated. She also said that this has been the first time in the VFW Blood Bank history that there has been a surplus of 25 pints and that this was mainly due to the splendid turn out by Ferroxcube. This also enabled the VFW Blood Bank to send six pints to the blood bank for gamma globulin to fight polio.

Commander Lewis, Mrs. Arold and Miss McCutcheon also addressed the group.

Mrs. Wm. Haggerty Describes Contrasts In Life in India

"India is truly a melting pot, with a mixture of many kinds of dress, food and local customs," said Mrs. William Haggerty in an illustrated lecture before the Women's Club of the YWCA on Thursday, Nov. 12.

Mrs. Haggerty accompanied her husband, president of New Paltz State Teachers College, to India where he was educational advisor to the government. They spent a year in this country with over 6,000 years of history behind it. Mrs. Haggerty showed the contrast in urban and country life, palaces, gardens, native costumes and customs through the medium of colored slides taken by the couple.

At the business meeting presided over by Mrs. William Ochs, president of the club, Mrs. Frank Thompson reported on the success of the World Fellowship Dinner held at the First Baptist Church, Tuesday, Nov. 10. She expressed her appreciation to members of the Women's Club for their cooperation.

Mrs. Ochs welcomed two new members into the club, Mrs. Scott Vining and Mrs. William Hulsar. It was also announced that the Women's Club will work with other clubs of the YWCA in the hanging of the Greens, Sunday, Dec. 6. At this time there will be a program, refreshments and a sale of cookies, candy and cranberry jelly.

Mrs. Ochs also announced that the Women's Club will celebrate its 25th anniversary this year with appropriate ceremonies at a later date.

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Ralph Harper introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. William Haggerty.

Following Mrs. Haggerty's talk, members of the club were served tea in the Lounge. Mrs. Richard Morse presided.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. William Petry, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Brandt, Major Helena Clearwater and Mrs. Ralph LeFever.

Following a roast beef dinner, gifts were presented to Mr. Flanagan from the staff and attorneys.

Robert Christopher Displays Gifts From Arab Chieftan

Robert Christopher Tells Dinner Club Of Varied Travels

Robert Christopher, photographer, author and best known at present as a courageous world traveler, held listeners fascinated by his adventure of Around the World on $80, at the Kingston National Dinner Club last night, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Rivalling Jules Verne's 80-day trip, Christopher modernized the journey, covering 28,000 miles in 84 days, on the total sum of $80.

His meeting with a Turkish student aboard the Orient Express was a high point in learning to trust all peoples on his trip, when instead of stealing a camera, the student left some coins to aid Christopher on his odyssey.

Detained by some forbidding Arab tribesmen on the desert of Jordan, the traveler soon made friends with them, following interrogation as a possible spy.

A trip in an air-conditioned Cadillac in the party of the Prince of Iraq is the best way to cross deserts under blazing sun, the speaker asserted. His dangerous travel on the Old Silk Road, when he hitched a ride with opium smugglers, was in direct contrast.

Sign Language Sufficient

In primitive Afghanistan, his quick thinking and expressions of friendship allowed him to escape from Mongolian smugglers. The speaker commented on the fact that although he didn't speak the language fluently, sign language and showing that he meant friendship were universally understood by even the most isolated people.

In India, he was thrilled by the natural beauty of the Himalaya Mountains, and by the man-made beauty of the Taj Mahal by moonlight. Resourceful Christopher again exchanged photos for a trip, this time via Siamese airline to Tokyo, Japan.

Celebrity in Japan

He arrived in Japan to find himself a celebrity on the last day of his globe-circling tour, since the Airlines had sent word ahead of his coming.

The homeward trip on freighter meant chipping ice from gale-swept decks for two freezing weeks.

Book of Travels Just Published

Questioned by the audience following his lecture, Christopher assured them that he "loves to travel," and hopes to continue traveling as what he considers the "most interesting life that anyone could lead."

His book, Around the World on $80, published by Henry Holt, on November 1, contains many and even more startling anecdotes about people and places on his trip, with photographs, taken by the author.

Enthusiastic Audience

The first speaker of the season was introduced by DeWeese DeWitt. Both Mr. DeWitt and Warren Smith, secretary, in their opening remarks to the group, stressed the fact that there are only 30 additional memberships still open for anyone wishing to join immediately. It is necessary that more memberships be accepted now to insure a complete program of speakers.

The 120 persons who enjoyed the well-delivered, unusual talk last night, are enthusiastic in the continuance of this fine cultural program for Kingston.

Roland Hayes, Tenor, To Sing at Vassar

Roland Hayes, noted tenor, who has brought joy and inspiration to millions of people the world over with his memorable song recitals, will sing a program of German lieder at Vassar College Thursday at 8:30 p. m.

The concert, given in the Students' building, will be open to the public. Reginald Boardman will accompany Mr. Hayes.

Norman Vincent Peale says of Mr. Hayes: "Without question, he is not only one of the truly great singers of our time, but one of our noblest spiritual geniuses as well. He has sung before presidents and kings but remains a simple unaffected disciple of the King of Kings. He told me that it is his custom as he begins a program to stand quietly for a minute by the piano as the audience waits. He closes his eyes and prays, saying 'Lord as I sing, please blot Roland Hayes out. Let the people see only Thee.'"

Holiday Events Spark Enthusiasm

About this time of year little girls temporarily forsake doll-tending for their first experiences with grown-up grooming. You might find yourself suddenly dealing with queries on how to look pretty for a forthcoming party. This is your opportunity to instill life-long grooming habits in your youngster. For this is the time when she will be most impressed with your stressing the importance of daily hair, skin and nail care. The little girl here has reached the permanent stage in her party planning. While her mother winds the curls (left), she amuses herself with a game book that comes with one of the children's home permanents. Then, with a plastic turban around her head, she enjoys a sandwich and soda while the permanent "takes." The grooming completed, she starts out for the party confident she looks her prettiest. She is well on her way to good grooming.

Home Bureau

Building Problems Answered

At a recent meeting on building materials sponsored by the Ulster County Home Bureau, Miss Ruby Loper, housing specialist and rural architect from the Department of Housing and Design at Cornell University, discussed and illustrated the various types of insulation and flooring materials, stressing the importance of fitting the particular kind required to meet a specific need and avoid moisture condensation.

Those present were given answers to their problems. Among them was the perennial one of ridding homes of dampness through attic and cellar ventilation.

Miss Loper explained that blistering and peeling of exterior paint is caused by the presence of moisture.

Samples of various kinds of composition floor coverings were displayed and their appropriate use was discussed.

Hugo Wessler Gives Washington School Prizes for Essays

To give added significance to the celebration of American Education Week and Armistice Day, Hugo Wessler offered prizes of $25 in defense stamps to pupils of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades in the George Washington School for winning essays on the subject, "What Armistice Day Means to Me."

Judges of the essays submitted were three teachers, Mrs. Allan McCorkle, Mrs. Donovan Buehring, Miss Lena Elmendorf and Ambrose J. Boyd, principal of the George Washington School.

The winner of the sixth grade essay award of $10 in defense stamps was Constance Koulos of Mrs. Katherine Abernethy's room. The choice of the judges for the fifth grade award of $10 in defense stamps was Karen Dawkins of Mrs. Harold Bunting's room. The judges selected the essay of Donald Playford for the award of $5 in defense stamps in grade four, Mrs. Lena Dumond's room.

These awards were presented in the Friday afternoon assembly program in the school auditorium.

The winning essays are as follows:

What Armistice Day Means To Me
 Armistice Day means a lot to me because this morning of November 11, 1918 the battle line in France shook with the roar of cannon. One minute later World War I was over. An Armistice was signed.

I am happy that this Armistice gave me perhaps my way of life. I owe thanks to the boys who fought in this war. Many of them left their homes and children to fight for freedom.

As I grow older, I hope that I can serve my country well. I know that I must show appreciation of the sacrifices which the boys of my country made for me. I must also stop to think of the privileges and freedom I enjoy today because of these sacrifices.

I will try always to be a good citizen to preserve a feeling of "Brotherly Love" and understanding for all people. Constance Koulos—Grade 6; teacher—Mrs. Abernethy.

Armistice Day means freedom, freedom from strife, freedom to live a new life, regardless of race, creed, or religion. By God's wish it halts the destruction of life and property. It means the stoppage of hate and new life for everyone, men women and children. We also honor on this day all the men who died to give us peace at the beginning of new hope. I and all the rest of the boys and girls in this building and other places should be happy to have the right treatment. In our lifetime, by God's wish, for God's people, I pray it will mean peace forever and ever. Karen Dawkins—Grade 5; teacher—Mrs. Bunting.

The first World War was in 1918. It was fought a long time ago. Many soldiers died. Do you know how their mothers felt when their sons died? We want peace. We do not want war. The soldiers were happy when they could come home. There could be peace all over the world, if people would get together and believe in God and work for peace. Donald Playford—Grade 4; teacher—Mrs. Dumond.

FAMILY VISITS

A new daughter-in-law writes me: "I have been married six months and during this time my husband's family have come to visit us just once. When asked why they didn't come more often, his mother said because they weren't invited. I was quite taken back at this statement as I always thought members of the families did not wait to be invited. Have I been wrong about this?"

The question itself suggests that you must have been very cool to your mother-in-law for her to feel this way. While they should be invited occasionally to a specific party or dinner, it is not supposed to be necessary to be invited to go to see nearest members of your family-in-law, any more than it is to those of your own family.

Christmas Present to Employer?

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been employed by this company for a little over a year. I am secretary to one of the executives. Last Christmas he gave me a government bond for a present. It was quite unexpected as I had been with him only a very short time. I would like to know if it would be proper for me to give him a present this Christmas. He has been very nice to me and I would like to remember him with a present, but do not want to overstep my bounds.

Answer: A present is not expected by an employer from any employee. It would, in fact, be considered improper, except possibly from one who has been very long with the firm.

Sending Own Picture

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a senior in high school and expect to graduate in January. I would like to know if it would be proper to enclose a billfold-sized picture of myself with my graduation announcements, or would this be presumptuous on my part?

Answer: A certain few of your nearest relatives and intimate friends would possibly not criticize, but others certainly would. In short, my best advice is "Don't!"

Is it good taste to use a printed card for acknowledging a personal kindness? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However her leaflet E-21 "Model Note," will help you. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., in care of The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

You may not like the bidding of today's hand, but it's quite reasonable for South to insist on a game contract when his partner opened the bidding. North didn't like the idea of letting the hand play at no-trump when she had a void suit, but South has bid the dangerous suit. No better game contract was available.

When today's hand was actually played in a recent mixed pair tournament in Newark, the chief interest was in the play of the cards. Practically all pairs got to three no-trump with the South cards, and many of them made it.

The most interesting defense was put up by Ira Rubin and Lucille Welch, both of New York. They managed to make declarer squeeze himself out of his ninth trick.

Rubin opened the jack of clubs from the West hand, and South let it ride around to his ace. He promptly returned the eight of clubs. West played the ten, and South played low from dummy, hoping that East would have to play the king.

West's ten held, and Rubin naturally shifted to a low diamond. South won the jack of diamonds and led another club to drive out East's king. Miss Welch now saw that declarer had five sure diamonds and three club tricks.

It seemed probable that either a heart or a spade lead would give declarer his ninth trick. She therefore led her remaining diamond, hoping that declarer would have trouble getting off the dummy safely.

This was a fine idea. Declarer had to take his diamonds and clubs immediately, since he would never get back to dummy if he failed to take them. This gave him eight tricks, but forced him to reduce to three cards.

South actually kept the ace of hearts and two spades. West had kept three spades and the king of hearts up to the end, and his last discard was the king of hearts. When the jack of spades was led from dummy, the defenders had three easy spade tricks. South never made his ace of hearts.

Declarer could not have saved himself by discarding the ace of hearts in order to save three spades. West would have kept the king of hearts and two spades.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Realism Isn't Always Real

The other midnight at Sardi's, the talk got around to daffy doings in that daffiest of all businesses—movies.

"Here's a yarn that's hard to top," said Harry Tugend, the Hollywood script writer, "and if you think I'm fancying it up, you can check it in either of two books—'The Cameraman' by Francis A. Collins, or 'A Million and One Nights' by Terry Ramsaye."

As Tugend told it, back in 1914 Harry Aiken, president of an outfit known as Mutual Studios, decided to make a picture about the insurrection in Mexico. At first he planned to shoot the interiors on the back lot of a movie studio and the big battles in the hills around Los Angeles. His second notion was a more ambitious one—to make a deal with Pancho Villa, the famous outlaw, and photograph some of his actual raids and battles.

Acting as Aiken's representative Frank M. Thayer went to Mexico and made contact with Villa. For the first half hour the bandit played hard to get but then, for the sake of posterity, he agreed to cooperate. All he asked in return was star billing, 25,000 American dollars, and a hefty chunk of the profits.

Surprisingly enough, the generalissimo more than lived up to the letter of the pact. First, to make sure the cameramen would have plenty of light to work with, he agreed to light only between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Second, at the request of L. M. Burrud, the chief lensman, he issued orders that his soldiers were to hold their fire until the enemy was in focus. Third—and this on his own insistence—he showed up each morning in plenty of time to let a makeup man touch up his features for the close-ups.

During the weeks which followed, the Mutual cameramen recorded thousands of feet of authentic mayhem. And, from start to finish, everything was made easy for the men who were documenting the bandit's feats for posterity—or at least Loew's Delancey.

On one occasion, when Villa was short of trucks and had to choose between sending camera supplies or ammunition to a battlefield, he let his cameramen wait. On another occasion—the attack on the town of Ojinaga across the Rio Grande from Presidio, Texas—he postponed a raid until the cameras were set up for maximum results. During this raid, he pulled his men back and had them attack all over again so the photographers could get the necessary retakes.

As if that weren't enough, Villa one day trained a battery of field guns on a hillside and blew an entire detachment of men to bits. It wasn't until the shooting had ended that the Mutual crew learned the detachment was made up of political prisoners whom the bandit was tired of feeding.

When Burrud and his men returned to New York, the "takes" were run off for the Mutual executives who were all primed to witness the most exciting war shots ever filmed. As it turned out, however, they were badly let down. Actual death they found, on film at least, was a lot less realistic than acted-out death. Real battles, even when carefully stage-managed, were sprawling, dirty, unglamorous affairs. There were a few exciting shots, of course, but taken in toto there was little in the Mexican footage on which to base a full-length picture.

In somewhat of a panic, Harry Aiken sent out a hurry call for a young director named D. W. Griffith, and hired him to shoot a tricked-up scenario about Villa. Well, the Griffith version was nothing to get excited about either but it was at least a film which could be shown.

As the bossman of Mutual later put it, "For movie purposes, David Griffith can make better war on a studio lot than all the generals from Alexander the Great to Napoleon."

Something For the Boys

It's the season for nominating "queens" of this or that, so we've rounded up a few for your edification. It seems that when you want to promote anything, from carpet tacks to multi-ton bulldozers, the first thing you do is go out and get yourself a pretty model. Of course you notice the pictures of pretty gals. Who wouldn't? But if you want to join the great national guessing game, ask yourself—a day or so after seeing the picture—"Now what the dickens was she supposed to be promoting?" Anyhow, it takes your mind off H-bombs, Communist spies, blizzards and the high cost of living.

Sight for sore eyes is Nancy Miller, "Miss Specs Appeal."

State Makes Plan To Bring Work For Migrant Crews

The New York State Department of Labor has put into practice a new plan of "advance booking" of migrant labor crews to insure them of employment on their return routes after the end of New York's harvest season.

The local Division of Employment office at 18 Pine Grove avenue referred six crews to more than 100 workers to Virginia for employment. Donald Munn, local farm placement representative, also assisted in the referral of 100 Jamaicans, employed by the Mid-Ulster Growers Cooperative, Inc., to employment in sugarcane fields in Florida.

3,000 Jobs Lined Up
The statewide report from Milton O. Loysen, executive director of the Labor Department's Division of Employment, noted that more than 3,000 migrant farm workers, members of 83 crews, had jobs lined up in southern states when they completed work in New York this fall.

The plan to assure the southern migrant workers a succession of steady jobs on their homeward route was hailed today by Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi as "a boon to everyone, to the farm worker, the farmer and the consumer as well."

Corsi said he believes that the new arrangement "will take much of the uncertainty out of the notoriously unstable pattern of migrant labor employment. It should also ease the farmers' concern about adequate harvest help and give assurance to consumers that food crops will not be kept from their tables by a shortage of farm labor."

Assurance for Workers

The advance booking of migrant crews rounds out an existing arrangement. For a number of years, the New York State Employment Service has been booking crews in the south during the spring for New York harvest assignments later in the season. Under the new plan, migrants will now have advance assurance of employment on their return route also.

Mid-September recruiting by employment service representatives of southern states, who came to New York at the invitation of the NYSES, resulted in bookings for 34 crews with 1,379 workers for late harvests in Virginia. Another 17 crews with 726 workers were recruited for North Carolina. Florida took 32 crews of 913 workers for harvesting and planting, and will get 31 additional crews who have prior commitments in Virginia and North Carolina. The local office of NYSES placed 521 migrant and 126 local workers with Ulster county fruit growers during the apple harvest season just completed. These workers were recruited through the cooperative efforts of the upstate New York and the New Jersey Division of Employment offices.

Lakers Gain First Place

(By The Associated Press)

The Minneapolis Lakers were back in their old familiar spot at the top of the western division of the National Basketball Association today, largely because Clyde Lovellette finally showed the form that made him an All-America two years ago.

The former Kansas star tallied 19 points, 17 in the second half, for his best performance since joining the play for pay league, as the Lakers trimmed the Fort Wayne Pistons 83-66 in the first game of a doubleheader at Buffalo last night. In the second game the Rochester Royals defeated the Boston Celtics 92-73.

The Lakers, last year's champions, started out slowly this season. They lost their first two games, but then went on to win the next four, and now top their division with a 7-4 record. The Royals are in second spot with a 5-3 mark.

The Pistons held a 45-43 lead when Lovellette found the range. Vern Mikkelsen added 18 points and George Mikan 13. Larry Foust was high for the Pistons with 16.

The Royals cracked their game wide open in the second period. They led 40-33 at half-time and pulled away thereafter. Bobby Wanzer tallied 16 points while Bobby Davies and Arnie Risen netted 13 apiece. High man for Boston was Easy Ed Macaulay with 16.

Honolulu—Bobby Why, 134, Los Angeles, declared winner over Larry Cantiberos, 132½. Honolulu, 5 (Cantiberos accidentally butted Why, opening cut over eye.)

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

The sportswriters can talk about downfield blocking, unsung heroes of the line, the hard-hitting running guards but, when the whistle cuts the crisp autumn air, the hand-off's completed and the play starts pouring through the line, the fan has eyes just for one player—the back.

In the brief history of football the names that last longer and gleam brightest are the great backfield men. Nothing can stir the imagination of a boy or the memories of a man like the Charlie Johnsons, Gene Massas and other great DUSO backs.

But the Roger Schillings and Bill Engles carry on unsung—all DUSO, all-everything to the backs who ride ahead of them.

Kalloch May Quit:

"Bo" Gill reports that coach Sam J. Kalloch, now in his 32nd year at Poughkeepsie, may retire if he achieves a grand slam of the three major conference titles—football, basketball and baseball. The grid title is already in hand and Blue prospects are bright in basketball and baseball next spring. Haber's Grill, made up of young men who will carry the basketball banner for Kingston High this season, have completed an impressive sweep through the YMCA "A" League. But Messrs. Bezezer, Broadhead and company get back into the big league on Dec. 11 at Fallsburg. There they will find the defenses stiffer and the opposition much sounder of wind and limb. These Maroons have an excellent chance to resist Kingston to the top of the DUSO basketball pack if they play up to their potentialities. Harvey Semiloff of Kingston is one of ten Lehigh University football men who complete their career Saturday against Gettysburg.

Golfdom's Best:
Golf DIGEST reports the tournament top of 1953.
Lowest 9-hole score: A 29 by Dave Douglas on the out nine of the third round of the Jacksonville Open. He came back in 35 for a 64.
Lowest 18-hole score: A 30-61 by Dick Metz in the first round of the Virginia Beach Open. This was eight under par.

Lowest 72-hole score: Doug Ford's 68-65-67-61-262 in the Virginia Beach Open. This was 14 under par.

Most surprising win: Bob Toski's victory in the Insurance City Open late in the season, after relatively poor showing all year.

Most Spectacular Shot: Lev Worsham's 120-yard wedge shot for an eagle-2 on the last hole of the World Championship to win the $25,000 first prize.

Little League Angle:
Attorney Bud Culliton, a staunch Little League booster, recently told the Saugerties Lions Club that "those who are opposed to Little League are those who have an axe to grind. They are the ones who think that we are cutting in on their territory."

Culliton mentioned that the State Education Department had expressed disfavor of the Little League movement. But he expressed complete confidence in Little League as a training ground mentally, morally and physically for youngsters.

"All of us are working to win," he said of Little Leaguers, "but that's not our main purpose. The main goal is training of youngsters—training for life."

He denied that the competitive features of the game works to the detriment of youngsters. He said that, on the contrary, this competition teaches them sportsmanship and fair play. He said it teaches them to lose and win gracefully.

Quickies: Onteora Central's Lou Bolter captured Class C cross country honors in the Section 9 meet at Bear Mountain where Onteora took second in the same division. Franklyn Russell, NFA's gifted runner, finished sixth in the state championships last Saturday at Schenectady. The winner, Arthur Dunn of Sewanhaka, set a new record of 10:46 for the 2.2 miles course. Fort Jervis and Middletown High will start their Thanksgiving Day contest at 11 a. m. Kingston and Newburgh still cling to the 2 p. m. starting time.

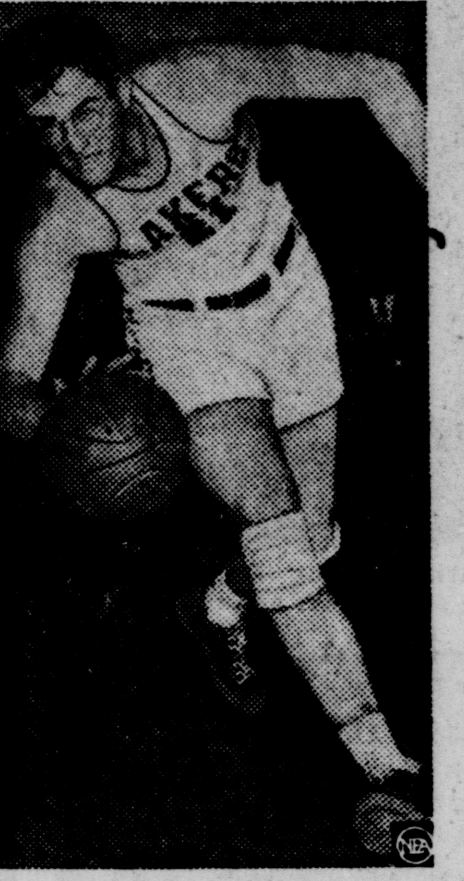

About Ike's Golf:
Bob Hope, who played golf with the President recently, says that if Ike slices a budget like he slices a golf ball this country has nothing to fear. Rapid Robert added that you can tell Ike's an old military man. When he puts his snaps to attention and shouts "fall in!"

Bucceroni Meets Beshore Tonight

Los Angeles, Nov. 18 (AP)—Philadelphia's Dan Bucceroni faces aging Freddie Beshore of Los Angeles tonight in a 10-round heavyweight fight for the entertainment of a national television audience.

The match goes on over the Columbia Broadcasting System from Olympic Auditorium at 10 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

Bucceroni, 26, and at 6-3 much taller than the 31-year-old Beshore, is the decided favorite. Youth and a harder punch are in his favor.

But whether the Philadelphian, who hopes to land a title fight with champion Rocky Marciano next year, can put fearless Freddie on the deck remains to be seen.

Beshore's only loss via a knock-out was a one rounder to Young Billy McClure about eight years ago. In subsequent fights Marciano, Joe Louis, Ezzard Charles and other name fighters were unable to put the Californian off his feet.

Kids Aren't as Tough as Papa Says Medic Blaming 1-Platoon Football for Injury Increase

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 18 (AP)—The return of the one-platoon system was blamed by a University of Virginia doctor today for an "alarming" 30 per cent increase in injuries to players on Virginia's football squad.

Dr. Charles J. Frankel, a faculty member at the university's medical school and examiner for the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery, said there has been a similar upswing in injuries at other colleges he has checked.

Furthermore, he said, the injuries have been more severe than in the days of unlimited substitutions.

"College athletes, with few exceptions, are not as rugged as a generation ago," Dr. Frankel, Virginia team physician, declared.

He said injuries this year have been more frequent and more serious not only in actual game competition but in practice sessions as well. The practice injuries are attributable to the efforts of coaches to condition their players to action on both offense and defense, Dr. Frankel said.

Boys Are Weaker
All such efforts, he added, are doomed to failure because today's college man, by and large, isn't the iron man his father was.

"Military service examinations have shown that all across the country, this generation of young men is less rugged than the last," the physician asserted. "Most boys today don't walk as much as they used to. They usually ride in an auto and consequently their legs and their bodies are weaker."

As team doctor here, Dr. Frankel has kept records of all football injuries at Virginia since 1935. This year the injuries are running 30 per cent ahead of the average for the last 19 years, he said.

While he could produce no statistics, he said his findings were similar in checks on injuries at Virginia Military Institute, Washington and Lee, William and Mary and the University of Illinois.

Knee injuries of the serious kind have soared since the one-platoon system was brought back, Dr. Frankel said, along with other injuries "which occur as a result of fatigue. Many times, toward the end of a football game, players are so fatigued they can't take care of themselves."

The return to the one-platoon standard "was supposed to be a great equalizer—but it's proving just the opposite," Dr. Frankel said.

Earl Sleight Sets Two New Marks With 277-652 in Central Rec Loop

Bouncing back from a 160 opener, Earl "Red" Sleight, the old baseball pitcher, fired nothing but strikes in the next two sets to rack up a record breaking 277 and 652 last night in the Central Recreation League.

Both totals were new seasonal highs for the loop. The Vanderlyn Battery squad also got into the spirit of things by piling up 2712 for a new team record.

Two other league leaders crashed into the "600" as Johnny Lowe topped 229-173-214-616 in the Electro and Howard Spaulding reeled off 245-211-165-621 in the International division of the Church Federation. Ed Kittle (211) and Bill MacElveen 184-151-194-529 paced the National section.

Fred Hommel dominated the Booster League action with a 237 solo and other slams of 196 and 163 for a 596 triple.

Ben Chipman unloaded 584 with 225-156-203 to take down high triple honors in the Good Neighbor League.

Embarrassment Made Faloney Back of Week

College Park, Md., Nov. 18 (AP)—Embarrassment made quarterback Bernie Faloney of Maryland's undefeated football team The Associated Press Back of the Week.

Congratulated for his all-out effort in Maryland's 38-0 conquest of Mississippi last Saturday, the 21-year-old senior from East Carnegie, Pa., replied:

"Well, they embarrassed me last year and they weren't going to do it again."

Mississippi embarrassed Faloney last season by completing two touchdown passes over him in its 21-14 upset. That was hitting Faloney in his biggest pride, defense. But he had an excuse. He was warring a face guard for a broken nose and it cut down his lateral vision so that Mississippi pass catchers were able to sneak around on his blind side.

He really put out in revenge. He intercepted two passes, ran for two touchdowns, recovered a fumble, brilliantly handled the ball and picked the Mississippi defenses to pieces. His first interception was in the end zone with the scoreboard blank and Coach Johnny Vaught of Mississippi called the play the turning point of the game.

"I've been hoping to make it," said Faloney when informed yesterday of his selection as the AP Back of the Week. "You know, I was runner-up twice. But I wasn't looking for it this week."

Betting at Flat Tracks Over Two-Billion Mark

But New York Has Two Per Cent Drop

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Thoroughbred horse racing, which broke all records for attendance and parimutuel wagering last year has again shattered all marks with betting passing two billion dollars for the first time in this country.

Incomplete and unofficial figures from the nation's 25 states where parimutuel betting is legal show that 1953 wagering at the running tracks is up 7.21 per cent over 1952, with attendance showing a 4.59 per cent gain, and revenue to the states hitting a high of 14.29 per cent above last year's record.

A year ago racing people said the big upswing could be credited to Uncle Sam's crackdown on bookmakers, plus increasing public confidence in the sport through policing by the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau. The upswing has been noted every year since 1950.

With estimates necessary from some states where racing still is continuing, such as California, Maryland, West Virginia and Rhode Island, a total parimutuel turnover of $2,068,052,889 is indicated for 1953. This compares with $1,928,925,499 last year.

Revenue to the states and municipalities will total a record $136,069,370, the survey indicated. A year ago their income was $119,061,276.

Slump in New York

New York and Colorado were down in betting and attendance. In Colorado the drop was negligible. New York tracks had a 2 per cent betting drop, and attendance was off 9.96 per cent, blamed in part on bad weather, the increased tax bite voted by the 1953 Legislature, and the nearby New Jersey tracks.

The New York takeout is 15 per cent, in New Jersey 12 per cent. The New York takeout jumped the state's take from 8 per cent, leaving New York with 3 per cent, the tracks 4 per cent. The state got an estimated 21.83 per cent more revenue this year.

Iowa's Fenton Lineman of Week

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—A lad whose football career was believed ended by illness last spring—Bill Fenton, Iowa end—was named the Associated Press lineman of the week today.

Iowa surprised Minnesota 27-0 and Fenton's feat in smearing Minnesota's famed Paul Giel earned him the nod in the weekly voting by sportswriters and broadcasters.

Giel, held to a mere 13 yards by rushing, didn't hesitate to praise Fenton.

"That boy Fenton was in my hair all afternoon," Giel said. "He was terrific, all right."

Fenton, a senior pre-medical student, won the coveted lineman honor a year ago under somewhat similar circumstances. In 1952 Iowa stunned Ohio State 8-0 and Fenton's sterling performance made him a campus celebrity. Later he was voted Iowa's most valuable player.

National Notes

The Authorized Brakes team of the St. Louis All-Star League scored a 3436 series on Oct. 22 to take the lead in the ABC's race for seasonal high score awards.

High man on the team had 698 and low man scored 676. ABC staff members cannot recall a higher team total in which some bowler did not go over the 700 mark. Hear's how the team scored: Ray Bluth, 698; Claude Fears, 690; Don McClaren, 687; Frank Mataya, 685; Pat Patterson, 676. Pete Kozloski, anchor-man for the Stegmaier Beer team in Plains, Pa., is having quite a season for himself. Kozloski, 38, a bowler of 15 years experience, scored an 815 series on Oct. 29, highest individual series reported to the ABC's high score awards department this season. Kozloski hit single games of 278, 280 and 257. In addition to the high series, Kozloski has also scored two "300" games this year. With the Nov. 2 reservation confirmation date past, all reservation holders must look forward to Dec. 1 as the last day for filing their tournament entries along with entry fees. If the entry is not in by Dec. 1, then all open spots in the schedule will be placed on a first come, first served basis until the final entry date on Feb. 2.

Hoffman's Deuce Trips West Hurley

Joey Hoffman's deuce with 30 seconds remaining enabled Norm's Drive-In cagers to open their season with a 34-32 squeaker last night at West Hurley.

West Hurley led 10-9 at the half and stayed in front by a close margin until the last half minute. A Jack Niles pass bounced off a West Hurley player into Hoffman's hands and he drove in for the decisive layup.

Hoffman paced the locals with 17 points and Jack Schoonmaker hit 8. Blatter and Hogan hit 13 and 12 respectively for the home club.

Maryland Has Team Terrapins Believed They Really Had During the 1952 Season

BY HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Writer)

Evening its score with Mississippi, 38-0, Maryland must be credited with one of the season's superior performances.

As an old grad cracked, "Jim Tatum has the team he believed he had last fall."

"This was a better Mississippi team than the one that shaded us as Oxford last year," explains Uncle Jim Tatum.

"How do you explain the tremendous switch in the score? Well, it's football, that's all. How could you figure Purdue beating Michigan State? It was Wisconsin over Illinois, 34-7. We had seven or eight boys up, and they obviously did not."

Coch Tatum has been pestered to name the Terrapin he considers most worthy as an All-America.

"Faloney, Felton, Hanulak, Stan Jones," the one-time North Caro-

Faloney Is Standout

Fullback Ralph Felton with the speed of a halfback is Maryland's bread-and-butter man. Chet Hanulak is a safety man who has averaged 9.3 yards on the ground. When a team has shut out five opponents, the safety man is entitled to a lot of credit. Jones obviously is the more formidable of the three standout tackles, the other being Blubber Morgan and Tim Breunlich.

Tatum calls six-foot, 185-pound Bernie Faloney, the slickest back he has ever seen, split-T quarterback or otherwise.

"Faloney is the co-captain, a fine student, a smart field general, an extraordinary runner and passer and as a sophomore he outkicked Tennessee's Hank Lauricella in the Sugar Bowl," stresses the Terrapins' top man. "He is a deadly hearing today with witnesses who were not named in advance. It said Snyder had sent word he was willing to testify, but couldn't make it today.

Although Jenner said the committee had closed the White case for the time being, McClellan said he thought it would be a good idea to ask Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark if he cared to respond to some written questions. At the time of White's promotion, Clark was Truman's attorney general.

Clark refused a subpoena by the House Un-American Activities Committee but said then he would consider answering written questions. Hoover said yesterday it was Clark who told him Truman had decided to let the White appointment go through and said "the President was interested in continuing the surveillance."

Hoover, greeted with applause as he took the stand, unfolded a carefully worded story of backstage maneuvering in the Truman cabinet during February, 1946.

Elizabeth Bentley had detailed to the FBI her activities as an espionage ring courier and that a letter, dated the following day, was sent to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, then Truman's military aide, listing White's name among others as possible members of an espionage ring. He said this was followed Nov. 27 by a 71-page memorandum on Soviet espionage activities, delivered to Vaughan Dec. 4.

Hoover said that when he learned White's nomination to the monetary fund post had been committed to the Senate Jan. 23, 1946, he sent Vaughan on Feb. 4 a 28-page report on White. He said that in the period from Nov. 8, 1945, to July 24, 1946, seven communications were sent to the White House mentioning White's name.

Truman has confirmed that on Feb. 6, the day the Senate confirmed White, an FBI report was called to its attention by South Carolina's Gov. James F. Byrnes, then secretary of State.

Hoover said he was not until Feb. 21 that Clark discussed the White appointment with him.

Felt It Was Unwise

"I told the Attorney General I felt it was unwise for White to serve," Hoover said.

Hoover met at lunch the next day with Clark and the late Fred M. Vinson, then secretary of the treasury. Hoover said that "Judge Vinson did not want Mr. White to serve as a U. S. delegate to the international monetary fund and, in fact, he did not want him to continue as assistant secretary of the treasury."

Hoover said Clark also felt White should not serve in the monetary post.

But he said Vinson voiced belief Truman could be forced to sign White's commission. Hoover said he advised Vinson and Clark that the evidence was such that it could not be disclosed at that time because it came from confidential sources.

Three Escapees

inside the prison buildings at Walkkill because he was afraid he would be tempted to run away when he failed to hear from his aged father who was ill. He said his request was denied and he escaped while working outside the buildings.

Each of the three have been given 365 additional days by the warden of the prison for bad conduct in having escaped. This is added to their time before they can apply for parole. Judge Cash-in took all of the facts into consideration but said punishment must be meted out.

Joseph Saccamano was assigned to William T. Cowans, who with Thomas G. White, is charged with burglary and unlawful entry. Seymour Werbalowsky asked to be relieved from assignment made by the court when it developed there was a conflict of facts between the jointly indicted defendants. Werbalowsky will continue to represent White.

Other criminal matters were moved over to Thursday and court recessed until 10 Thursday to which time jurors were excused.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—The stock market edged up slightly today as the flood of dividend reports continued to create some irregularity in the list.

Gains ran to around a point at the best while losses were usually in the smaller fractions.

Trading was rather light at a pace under yesterday's 1,250,000 shares, a level well below the daily average so far this year.

Steel was higher for the most part with Republic Steel moderately active. It was yesterday's most active issue after reporting favorable dividend action.

General Baking was off 1/4 at 11 on a block of 1,300 shares shortly after directors deferred action on the common dividend until the next board meeting Jan. 6.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Boeing, American Telephone, Anaconda Copper, General Electric, Southern Railway, and Johns-Manville.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city; branch office 41 John street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

absolutely foolproof, as anyone knows," the statement said, "we have diligently followed security instructions as determined by the armed forces representatives who work with us in those plants engaged in defense contracts. Indeed, many of our security procedures go beyond the security requirements of the government." McCarthy conferred for two hours in New York yesterday with army secretary Robert T. Stevens, who said last Friday that army investigators found no "current case" of espionage at Ft. Monmouth. They emerged in apparent good humor, and the army secretary said his department will take prompt action if the subcommittee digs up any new evidence. Stevens said a congressional group with subpoena powers sometimes can go further than the army.

"I repeatedly stated," Stevens said of his remarks last week,

Now you Know!
The answers to everyday insurance problems.
By HERMAN J. EATON
QUESTION: I've been told there is a form of insurance which in event of the death of a partner in a business, will pay to the surviving partner enough money to buy the deceased partner's interest in the business. Is this correct?
ANSWER: Yes, there is such insurance, commonly called "partnership insurance." More and more firms are availing themselves of this protection against financial loss through death of a key member of the organization.
• If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.
